UK trade with the European Union: a summary

In 2018, the UK recorded an overall trade deficit with the EU of -£64 billion.

A surplus of £29 billion on trade in services was outweighed by a deficit of -£93 billion on trade in goods.

The UK recorded an overall trade surplus with non-EU countries - a surplus in trade in services outweighed a deficit in trade in goods.

Taken as a bloc, the EU is the UK's largest trading partner.

In 2018 the EU accounted for 46% of UK exports and 54% imports.

Looking at individual countries, the the USA is the UK largest trading partner, accounting for just under a fifth of UK exports and just over 10% of imports in 2018.

The share of UK exports accounted for by the EU has generally fallen over time.

In 2002, UK exports to the EU accounted for 55% of all exports; this had fallen to 43% in 2016.

The share of all UK imports accounted for by the EU fell from a high of 58% in 2002 to a low of 51% in 2011.

1. Trade in 2018

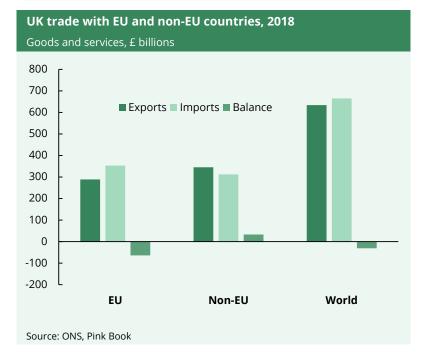

1.1 Overview

In 2018:

- The UK exported £289 billion of goods and services to other EU member states. This is equivalent to 46% of total UK exports.
- Goods and services imports from the EU were worth £345 billion (54% of the total).
- The UK had a trade deficit of -£64 billion with the EU but a surplus of £33 billion with non-EU countries.
- The UK recorded a deficit in goods with both the EU and non-EU countries, but a trade surplus in services with both the EU and non-EU countries.
- The EU accounted for 49% of UK goods exports and 41% of services exports; 54% of imported goods and 50% of imported services were imported from the EU.

1.2 Trade with individual EU countries

The graph below shows the UK's trade balance with each of the other 27 EU member states.

In 2018:

- The UK had a trade deficit with 20 of these countries, a surplus with 4 and was broadly in balance with 4.
- The UK's largest EU trade surplus was with Ireland (£16 billion) while its largest deficit was with Germany (-£22 billion).

When examining trade in goods and services, the picture is more mixed:

- The UK recorded a trade surplus in goods with 5 EU countries, a deficit with 19 and was broadly in balance with 4. The largest goods surplus was with Ireland (£8 billion), the largest deficit was with Germany (-£32 billion).
- The UK recorded a trade surplus in services with 14 EU countries, a deficit with 6 and was broadly in balance with 7. The largest services surplus was with the Netherlands (£11 billion), the largest deficit was with Spain (-£8 billion).

The Appendix at the end of this note shows data on UK trade with individual EU member states in 2017.

1.3 Trade in goods

In 2018, petroleum and petroleum products were the UK's single largest export to the EU, valued at £21 billion, 12% of all UK goods exports to the EU and 64% of all UK exports of petroleum and petroleum products.

Other British goods exports to the EU included road vehicles, valued at £17 billion (10% of goods exports to the EU) and medicinal and pharmaceutical products valued at £11 billion (6% of all goods exports to the EU).

In 2018, road vehicles were the UK's single largest import from the EU, valued at £47 billion, 17% of all UK goods imports from the EU and 43% of all UK imports of road vehicles.

Other British goods imports from the EU included medicinal and pharmaceutical products, valued at £18 billion (7% of goods imports from the EU) and electrical machinery and appliances valued at £11 billion (4% of all goods exports from the EU).

1.4 Trade in services

In 2017, the UK's single largest service export to the EU was "other business services", valued at £31.0 billion; this represented 28% of all UK service exports to the EU. This category includes legal, accounting, advertising, research and development, architectural, engineering and other professional and technical services. Other British service exports to the EU included financial services, valued at £26 billion (24% of service exports to the EU). Combined, these two categories made up just over half of all UK service exports to the EU.

In 2017, the UK's single largest service import from the EU was travel services, which made up over 40% of UK service imports from the EU.

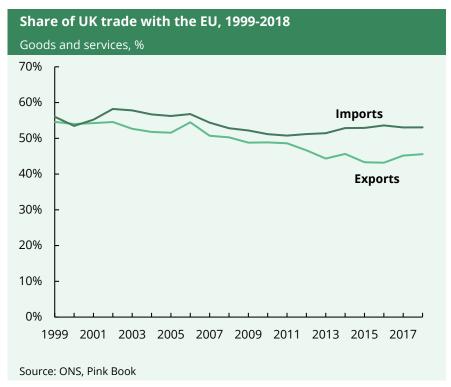

Travel services include services provided by hotels and restaurants, travel agencies and tour operators and will include services consumed by a resident of one country in another – a British tourist staying in a hotel in an EU member state will count as a British service import; a tourist from the EU staying in a British hotel would count as a UK service export.

2. Recent trends

The share of UK exports going to the EU has declined gradually in recent years:

- In 2006, the EU accounted for 55% of all UK exports. By 2016, this had fallen to 43%, before rising to 46% in 2018.
- The picture on imports is slightly less clear. In 2002, 58% of UK imports were from the EU. By 2010, this had fallen to 51% but has increased slightly more recently, reaching 54% in 2016.

The fall in UK exports to the EU is more pronounced in goods than in services:

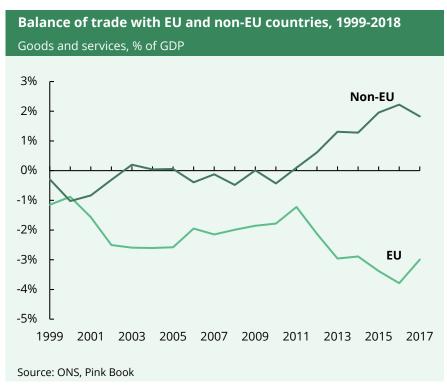

- In 1999, 61% of all UK goods exports were to the EU; by 2017 this had fallen to 49%.
- The EU has accounted for a consistent share of UK service exports this has remained at around 40% since 1999.

Trends in trade in imports have been mixed:

- The proportion of UK goods imports being sourced from the EU has remained fairly consistent since 1999.
- In general, the proportion of service imports being sourced from the EU has fallen since 1999, from a high of 57% in 2003 to 49% in 2017.

Overall, the UK has had a trade deficit with the EU in every year since 1999. By contrast, the UK has had a surplus with non-EU countries since 2012.

The Appendix at the end of this note shows a time series of data on UK trade with the EU.

2.1 The Rotterdam effect

All of these figures do not account for what is known as the Rotterdam effect – this is the theory that the UK's trade with the Netherlands is artificially inflated owing to goods being dispatched to or arriving from the port of Rotterdam, even if the original source or eventual destination country is elsewhere.

This will also have a potential knock-on effect, as some trade recorded with the Netherlands, and thus the EU, may ultimately be with non-EU countries.

The scale of this effect is not known - a 2015 ONS article on the subject states:

There are legitimate, proven reasons as to why trade with the Netherlands is high, even relative to its population. It is also reasonable to assume that trade with the Netherlands suffers from an element of distortion. However, it is not possible to estimate, with any certainty, the impact that the Rotterdam effect has on UK Trade with the Netherlands and its subsequent impact on UK Trade with EU and non-EU countries.¹

¹ ONS, UK Trade in Goods estimates and the 'Rotterdam Effect', 6 February 2015

Even if a high proportion of recorded UK trade with the Netherlands is with non-EU countries, the EU remains the UK's largest trading partner by a considerable margin.

Trade between EU & Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland & English regions

HMRC publish data on trade with the EU for Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and the English regions. These figures are for trade in goods only – they do not include services.²

3.1 Exports

61% of exports of goods from Wales and Northern Ireland go to the EU - this is the highest proportion of any country or region in the UK, followed by the North East and Yorkshire and the Humber at 60%.

Scotland and the East of England also have relatively high shares of exports to the EU.

4. Tariffs

While the UK is a member of the EU, there are no tariffs on trade with other EU member states. Goods imported into the EU from non-EU countries pay the EU's common external tariff, unless there is a free trade agreement or preferential trade agreement.

The tariff rate differs between different goods. While on average EU tariffs are low, they are high for some products, especially agricultural products. The trade-weighted average EU tariff for non-agricultural products was 2.8% in 2018 and 8.7% for agricultural products.³

The table below gives a breakdown by type of product.

About the Library

The House of Commons Library research service provides MPs and their staff with the impartial briefing and evidence base they need to do their work in scrutinising Government, proposing legislation, and supporting constituents.

As well as providing MPs with a confidential service we publish open briefing papers, which are available on the Parliament website.

Every effort is made to ensure that the information contained in these publicly available research briefings is correct at the time of publication. Readers should be aware however that briefings are not necessarily updated or otherwise amended to reflect subsequent changes.

If you have any comments on our briefings please email papers@parliament.uk. Authors are available to discuss the content of this briefing only with Members and their staff.

If you have any general questions about the work of the House of Commons you can email hcenquiries@parliament.uk.
